Sending your child on their first solo flight can be both exciting and nerve-wracking for parents. Fortunately, Delta Airlines offers a comprehensive unaccompanied minor service to ensure that your child is well cared for and safe throughout their journey. Whether it's a short domestic trip or an international adventure, Delta has clear guidelines to support young travelers flying alone.

In this blog, we'll walk you through Delta's unaccompanied minor policy, including how much the service costs and how to contact Delta's customer service for any questions or concerns.

How Much is the Delta Airlines Unaccompanied Minor Fee?

If you're booking a flight for your child as an unaccompanied minor, Delta charges a special service fee for the added care and assistance your child will receive. The unaccompanied minor fee typically ranges from $150 to $200 per flight. This fee is for children between the ages of 5 and 14 who are traveling without an adult.

It's important to note that children 15 years or older are not considered unaccompanied minors by Delta, and therefore, they do not require this service or fee. However, they can still travel alone, but without the added supervision or assistance from the airline.

The unaccompanied minor service covers several key aspects to ensure your child's safety and comfort, including:

Airport Assistance: Delta's staff will guide your child through check-in, security, and boarding, making sure they don't feel lost or overwhelmed.

In-Flight Supervision: Flight attendants will keep a close eye on your child, providing comfort and assistance during the flight.

Arrival Procedures: Upon arrival, your child will be handed over only to the designated adult, who must provide identification.

Since the exact fee may vary depending on the flight and route, it's a good idea to confirm the cost when booking. For more details about the unaccompanied minor service, you can always call Delta's customer service at 1-877-908-6960.
