Flying alone for the first time can be a big step for kids—and understandably, a big concern for parents. That's why Delta Airlines offers a comprehensive unaccompanied minor service, designed to ensure that your child's journey is safe, smooth, and stress-free. Whether your child is traveling for a family visit, a school trip, or any other reason, Delta's unaccompanied minor service makes it easier for you to send them off with peace of mind.

In this blog, we'll walk you through Delta's unaccompanied minor policy, including how much the service costs and how to get in touch with customer service for any questions or assistance you might need.

How Much Is the Delta Airlines Unaccompanied Minor Fee?

When booking a flight for an unaccompanied minor with Delta, you'll need to pay an additional service fee. This fee is in place to cover the extra care, supervision, and assistance that Delta provides to young travelers flying alone.

The Delta unaccompanied minor fee typically ranges between $150 and $200 each way, depending on the route. The fee applies to children aged 5 to 14. If your child is 15 years or older, they are not considered an unaccompanied minor and do not require this service, although they can still fly alone without the added supervision.

Here's what the fee includes:

Airport Assistance: Delta staff will help your child navigate check-in, security, and boarding. They'll be escorted through the airport to ensure they don't get lost.

Flight Supervision: Throughout the flight, flight attendants will check on your child regularly and provide any necessary assistance.

Arrival Assistance: Once the flight has landed, your child will be handed over to the designated adult at the arrival airport, but only after verification of their identity.

Keep in mind that the exact fee can vary based on the specific route, so it's a good idea to confirm the fee when booking. For more details on pricing or to confirm the fee for your child's specific flight, you can reach Delta's customer service at 1-877-908-6960.
